

RETAIL SECRETS

THE STUFF YOUR CASHIERS DON'T WANT YOU TO KNOW.

Never, I repeat, never pay full price for retail.

There's just no reason to spend the asking price for apparel, home goods and toys — not when you're armed with the shopping smarts you'll acquire after reading this ebook. Do it right and you'll know how to score name-brand clothes for cheaper than Walmart prices. No joke.

Coupons for retail — online and in-store — is a thing, and let me tell you, it's way easier than you might think. For one thing, there is no coupon-clipping involved. So forget what you think you know about price matching, gift cards, coupon codes and sale tags. It's time to start thinking more strategically, and it's time to start using multiple strategies together to achieve the most savings possible.

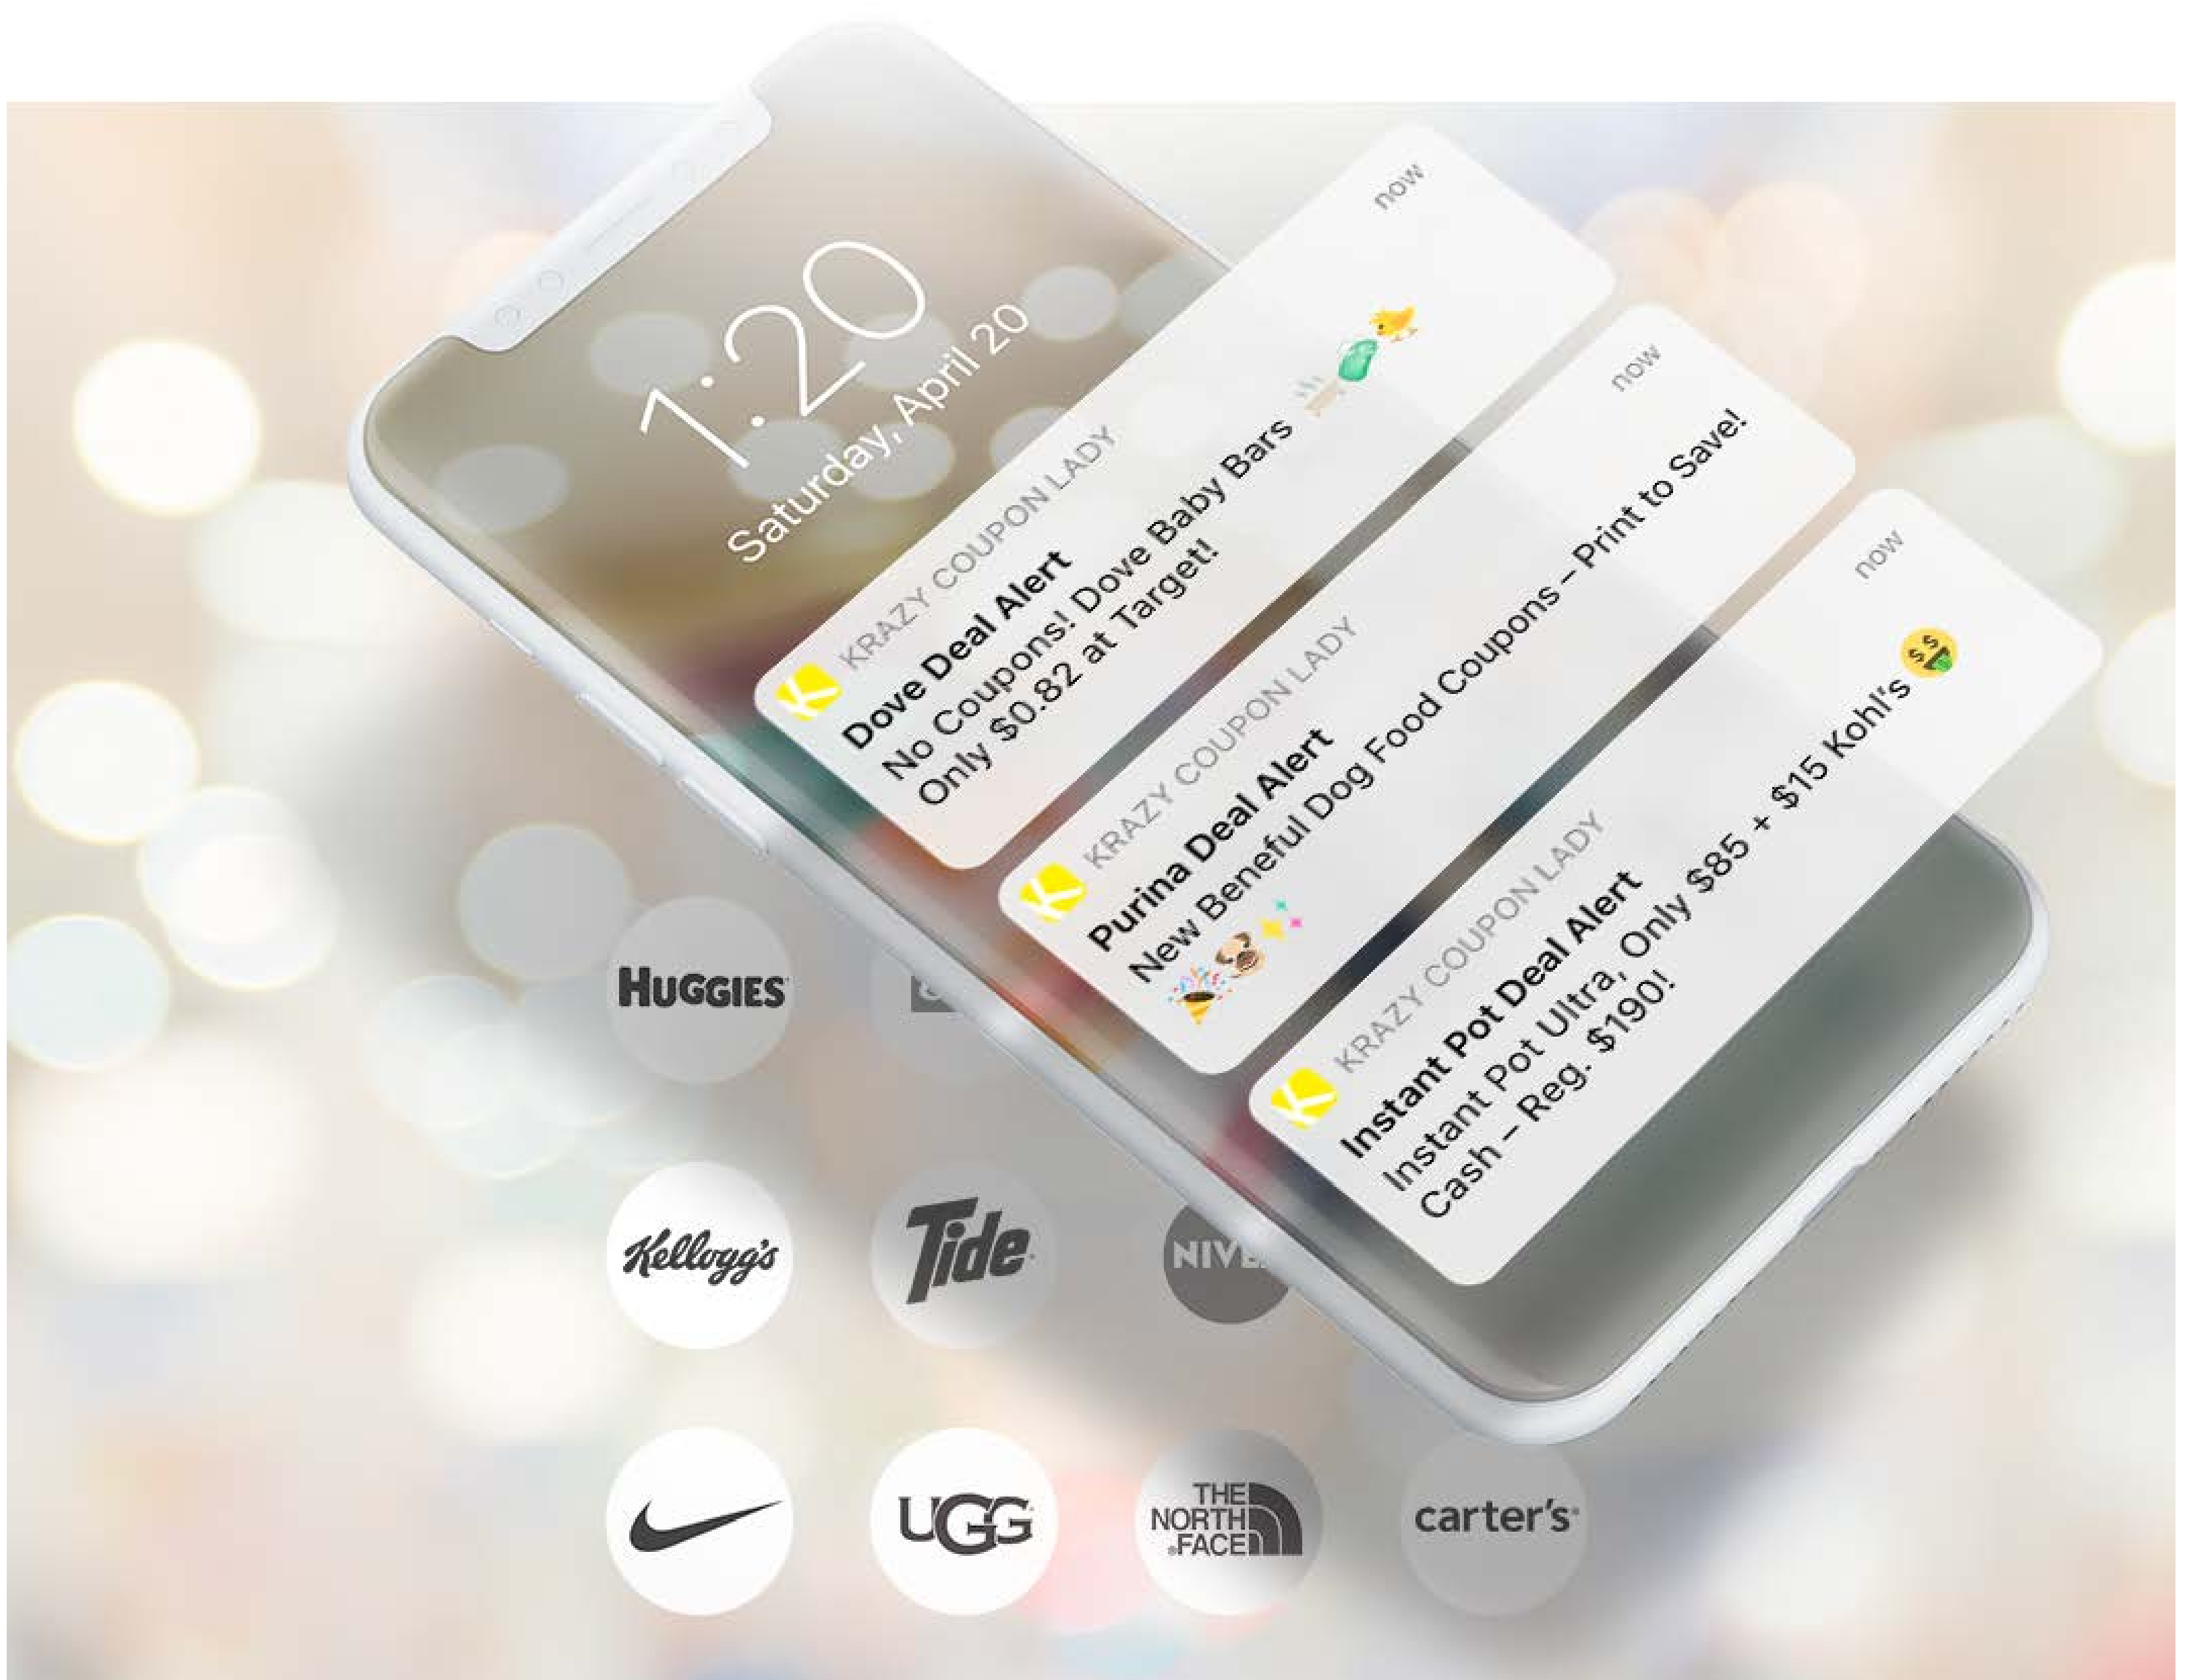

Don't use coupons for groceries? You will for retail and it's going to change your world. Here's a new level of crazy couponing.

The Krazies

Oh....a little PSA before we get too far along.

Want to start saving like, now? Use the free Krazy Coupon Lady app to slash your retail spending in half! When you customize deal alerts for your favorite brands in our app, you'll be one of the first to know about an unbeatable discount. Do your kids want Converse shoes? # Price Adjustments

You know the sweater you're wearing that you bought last week? It just went on sale.

SO. FRUSTRATING. I get it. Good thing price adjustments exist!

Many of my favorite retailers — including Target and Kohl's — allow shoppers to receive a partial refund on the purchase price of an item if the item goes on sale within a specified timeframe. With the exception of the week surrounding Black Friday, most retailers give you about 14 days from your purchase date to request what's called a "price adjustment."

$10
refunded!

So, rejoice! That new sweater you love to wear just became a bargain! You may have bought it for $25, but because it just got discounted to $15, you can request the difference back in cash or store credit.

PRICE ADJUSTMENTS (CONTINUED)

What do I need for a price adjustment?

Unlike returns, which often require you to bring back an unopened product for a credit, you typically only need the original receipt for a price adjustment. No worries if you've already used or worn merchandise. Just be aware that some stores will only adjust the price of an item if it's identical in every way to what just went on sale — exact size, style and/or color.

How can I easily track prices?

Tracking price reductions may seem like a lot of work, but it's actually super easy — especially if you have The Krazy Coupon Lady app (have I mentioned it's 100% free?!). Our team of deal experts curate only the best savings and coupons for you so you don't have to. It's literally our job to save you money.

PRICE ADJUSTMENTS (CONTINUED)

Now, with the KCL app, you can get personalized deal alerts according to product or brand, so you'll know when a popular brand or item you bought (or want to buy) just went on sale. So go ahead. Download it and immerse yourself in savings.

Matching online and in-store prices

Price adjustments. . .price matching. . .what's the diff?!

A price adjustment is all about finding a price drop on an item you've already purchased. When you find a price drop, you can ask the retailer to give you money back for the difference between the new sale price and the higher price you paid.

And then there's price matching. Most frugal-minded shoppers have a basic knowledge of price matching. For instance, couponers should know that stores like Target will honor a competitor's price if it's lower than their own. Some stores, like Home Depot, will even beat their competitor's lower price by an additional 10%.

MATCHING ONLINE AND IN-STORE PRICES (CONTINUED)

Say what?! Yep. It's true — learn all about the cool things Home Depot offers in **36 Home Depot Hacks You'll Regret Not Knowing.**

Price matching is a game changer.

Asking a retailer to price match competitors saves you tons of time because you don't have to drive around town in pursuit of the best local deal. Pull up the lower price in a paper or online ad, show it to customer service and that's that. You just got the best deal in town.

What many shoppers don't know is that not all retailers have the same in-store and online pricing. Sometimes online prices are way better than those in-store. It's kind of the worse when you buy a pair of shoes at the mall only to see the exact store's website has a better deal!

Shop smarter: request that you get the lowest price the store offers anywhere — period.

By price matching while you're in-store, you'll get the product you want faster and you won't have to pay shipping fees. Show the lower price on your mobile device at customer service. Or, do your online research prior to shopping in-store and print out the page to show as proof.

MATCHING ONLINE AND IN-STORE PRICES (CONTINUED)

Now, this doesn't work everywhere. Some retailers' brick and mortar and online shops operate separately. But then there are the retailers below. These stores will price match their own website, and depending on the retailer, you may be able to ask for a price adjustment if you find out an item's cost is cheaper on the store's website after you buy.

So listen up, know your shopper rights, and don't be afraid to ask for the better deal. It'll save you — big time.

Stacking coupons

Stacking coupons is a pretty big deal for couponers. It's how we get rock-bottom prices on household essentials like cereal, shampoo, detergent and toilet paper.

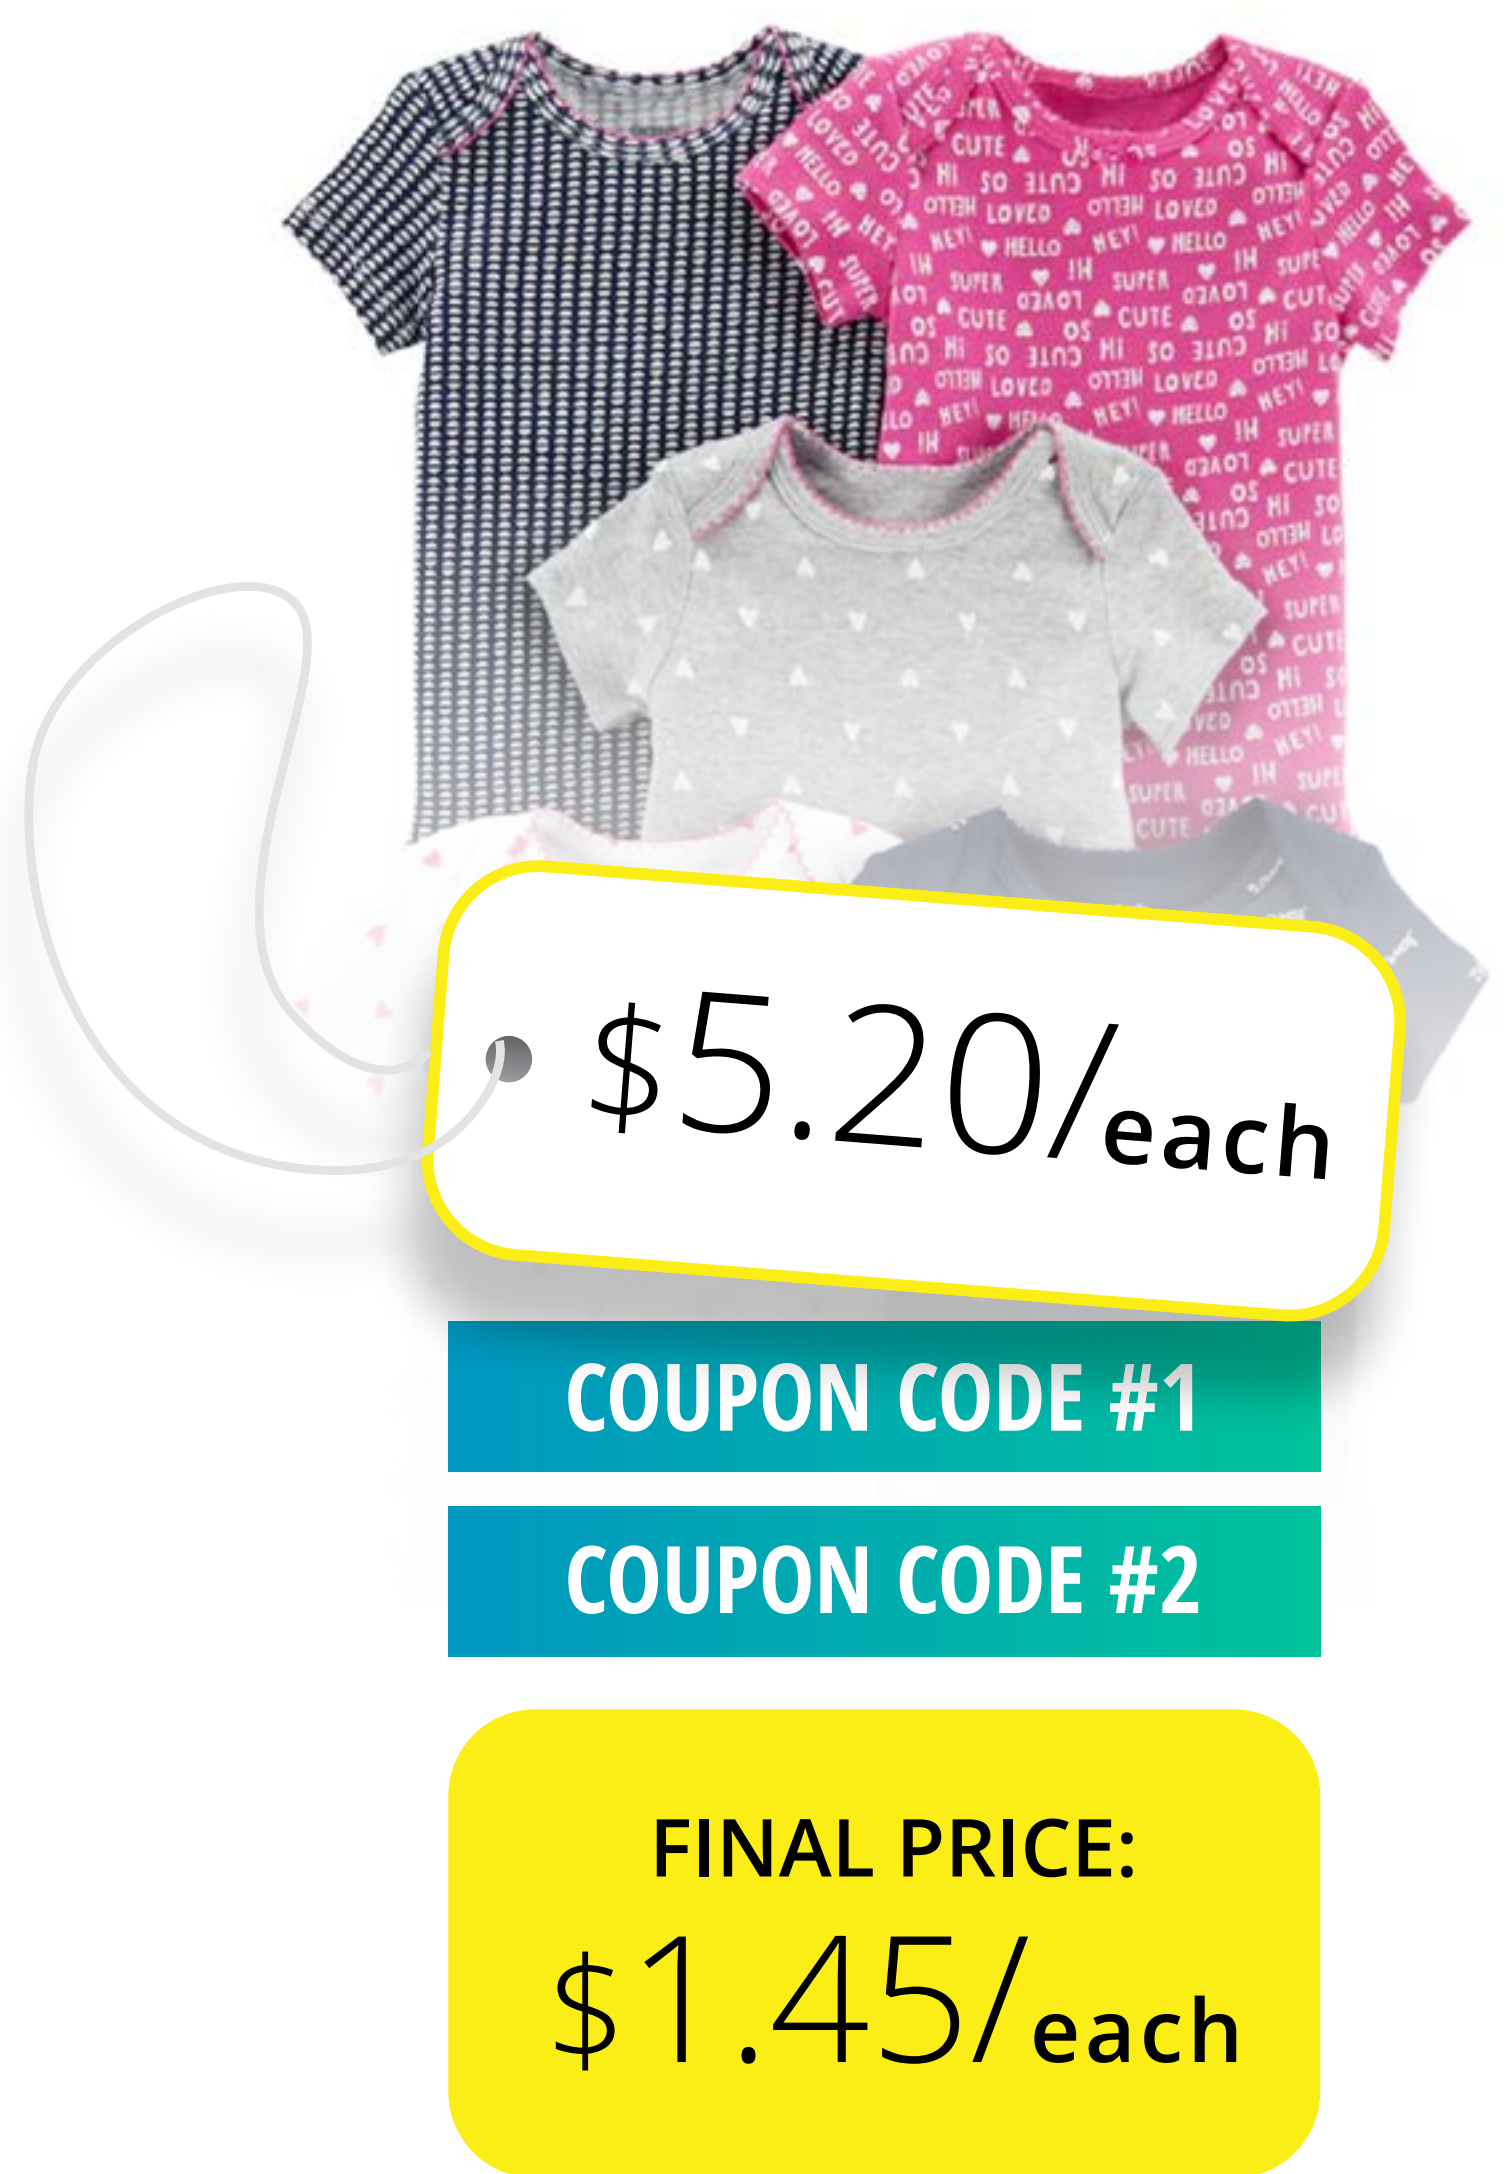

We can almost always find free manufacturer coupons for those items, and when we use a sale price, a rebate-app offer and/or a store promotion in addition to those manufacturer coupons, the final price is ridiculously low. We're talking $0.50 for a box of cereal and $1.00 for detergent (and I mean the good kind — no generics). Piling on the savings that way is what we couponers call, "stacking."

Hungry for more info on stacking grocery savings? We gotchu. Check out **The Ultimate Guide to Stacking Coupons.**

STACKING COUPONS (CONTINUED)

Stacking coupons isn't just for in-store grocery savings, though. You can use digital coupon codes to stack the savings online too! It's how I'm able to find dirt-cheap, name-brand clothes for my family every season. For instance, when Kohl's has a big Carter's baby clothing sale, I can usually stack at least two coupon codes on top of the sale price to score bodysuits for $1.45 each!

What types of online coupons can I stack?

Think there's only one type of online coupon retailers use? Think again.

At Kohl's — aka my favorite online store to stack coupons at — you can use up to four codes in single transaction as long as you're on a desktop computer. (If you're shopping Kohl's on a mobile device, you're only allowed to stack two coupons.)

Generally, here are the types of coupons online retailers offer:

- 1 Percent-off coupons
- 2 Dollar-off coupons
- 3 Department-specific, percent-off or dollar-off coupons
- 4 Free-gift-with-purchase coupons
- 5 Rewards coupons
- 6 Free shipping coupons

Where can I find online coupon codes?

The key to stacking coupon codes online is knowing where to find the coupons. While most major retailers promote their hottest coupon codes right on their website, many stores keep their best coupon codes exclusive to their most loyal shoppers.

Signing up for a store's email newsletter is the first step to becoming a loyal shopper. Most retailers will almost always send you a welcome coupon. If you're worried about cluttering your inbox, create a new email account solely for the purpose of receiving store coupons and promotions.

Other than browsing Online Deals in the Krazy Coupon Lady app and site for coupon codes, one of my favorite ways to find online coupons is with Honey, a free tool you can download as an extension in your internet's Chrome browser.

Honey is a low-effort way to discover hidden coupon codes. Once added to your browser, simply click the Honey icon in your toolbar, and it'll search for any available coupons. Tap the coupon code(s), and it'll automatically be applied at checkout. It's seriously one of the most low-effort ways to find coupons online.

PRO TIP:

If the retailer you're shopping doesn't offer free shipping and you can't find a code, check if they offer free ship-to-store or in-store pickup. Shop online, stack coupon codes, then pick up in-store to avoid shipping fees.

Here are some online retailers that allow coupon stacking:

GAP

Gap.com allows up to five coupons per order. Not all coupon codes stack. Usually a percent-off discount will stack with a dollar-off discount. In the phone screenshot, I used a 40% off code: BEST, stacked with the 10% off code: WELCOME, and redeemed a $20 Gap card reward.

Some stores allow a coupon such as 10% off in addition to an in-store promotion such as an additional 25% off sale. The catch is, this only works when the in-store promo rings up automatically. The cashier is only permitted to enter one discount code per purchase. If the in-store promo requires manual coupon entry, no other coupons may be applied. Just watch the payment screen as your items ring up. If the extra 25% savings is deducted automatically, go ahead and present your coupon to the cashier. If the items ring through without the additional 25%, it's safe to assume that the cashier will have to enter a promo code at the end, and you won't be able to use your coupon for additional savings.

KOHL'S

Kohl's allows up to four coupon codes per order. Find coupons at "Kohl's Today's Deals" and in your local Kohl's "Today's Ad". Use up to four of the below:

- Up to one sitewide percent-off coupon code (ex: 15% off an entire purchase).
- Up to four department-specific, percent-off or dollar-off coupon codes (ex: 20% off home bedding, $10 off a $30 children's apparel purchase).
- Up to four Kohl's rewards codes (ex: Kohl's Cash and Yes2You Rewards).
- Up to one free shipping code (ex: free shipping on any order).

One sitewide+two department specific+Kohl's Cash. Or, one sitewide+three Kohl's Cash. You can't use more than four codes total.

OLD NAVY

VICTORIA'S SECRET

There are three types of coupons that exist at Victoria's Secret. They are:

- Free Shipping – Shipping at VictoriasSecret.com is free for purchases over $100. Look for coupons and special offers that will lower that threshold or completely eliminate shipping all together.

- Free Gift with Purchase – There are always, and I mean always, offers for a free gift with purchase at Victoria's Secret. This can be a free panty, free sports bra, free bag, etc.

- Dollar/Percentage Off – These are coupons like "$15 off a $100 purchase" or "25% off a bra purchase."

When shopping online, always check "Today's Offers" at the bottom of the page. At any given time there will be at least 10-15 offers. Choose up to three offers and the promotion will automatically be added to your cart.

You'll find that V.S. is pretty liberal when it comes to stacking coupons. That means stacking multiple freebies or multiple dollar/percentage off coupons isn't out of the question. Read the fine print to understand how your offers work before heading to the store; some offers you come across will have specific restrictions.

H&M

Most H&M discounts can't be stacked. If an item is on sale, you generally can't use a percentage-off discount, and you can't stack multiple percentage-off coupons for a bigger discount. The major exceptions to this rule are the 15% recycling coupon, which can be used on sale items, and free shipping codes. The H&M app frequently has a free shipping code offer, and this can be stacked with other percentage-off codes as well.

Price Tags

To the untrained shopper, price tags might simply indicate the cost of a product being considered for purchase. But we crazy couponers know better.

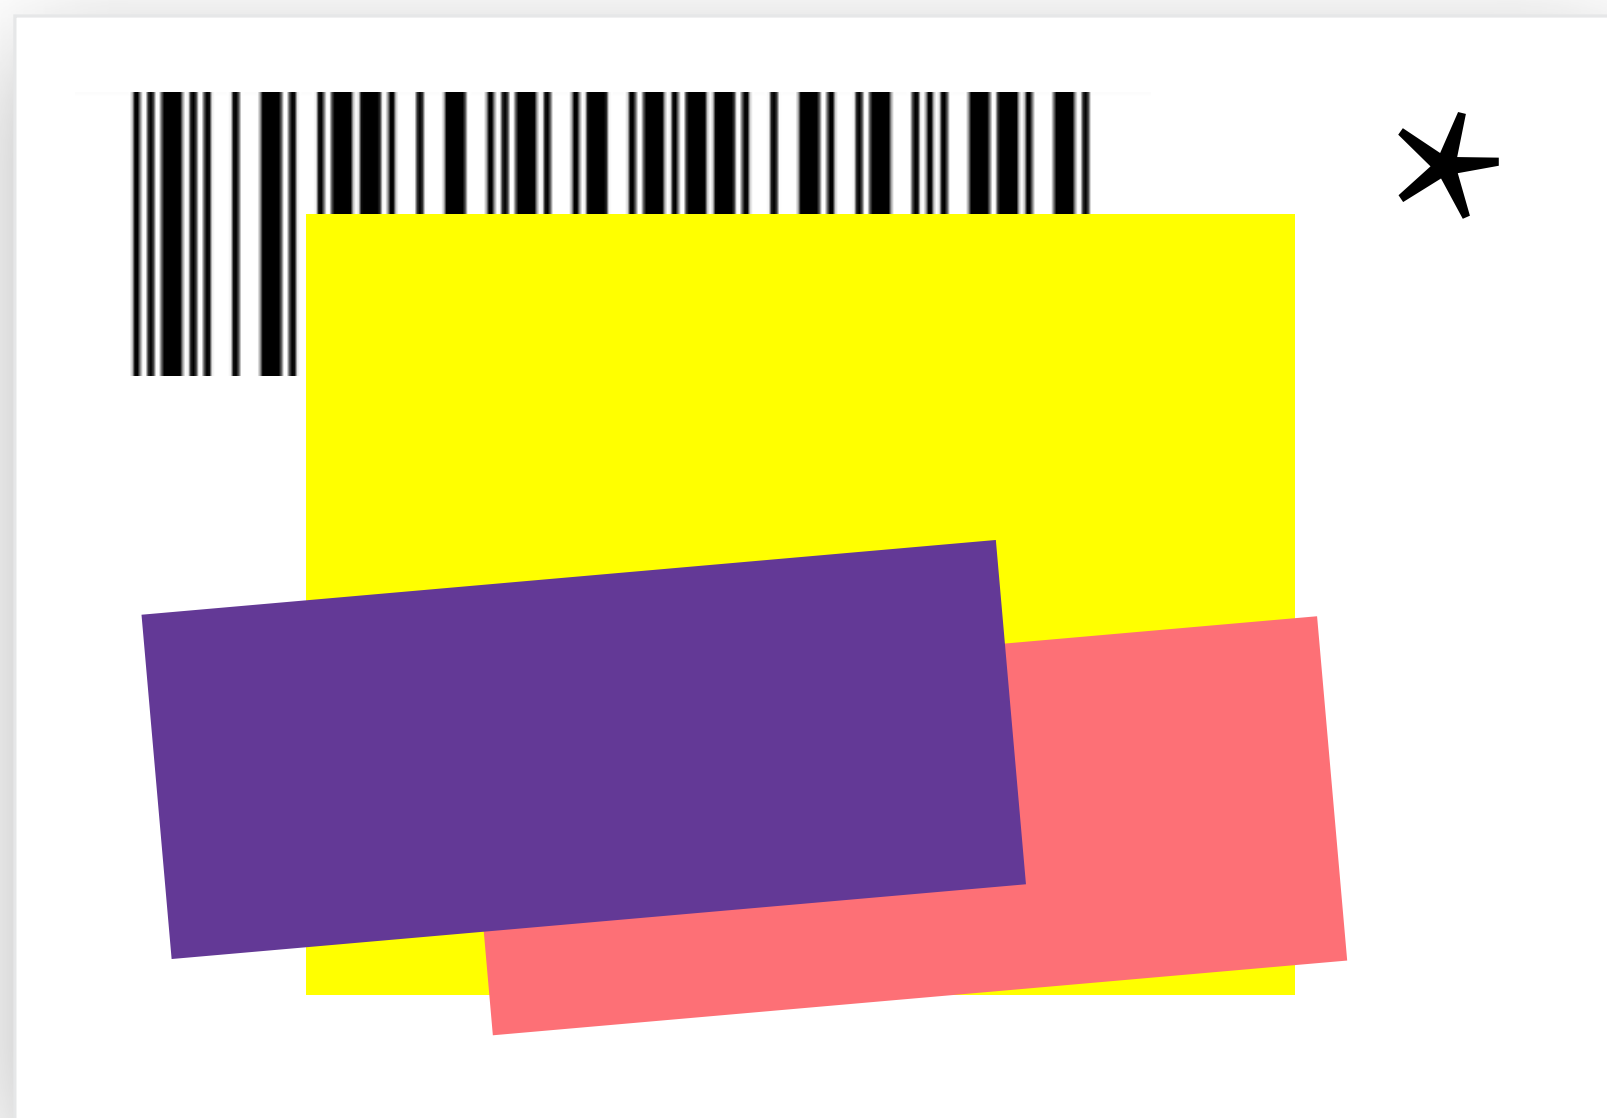

Price tags are like secret windows into a retailer's markdown schedule. They hold information revealing how long an item will be on sale and whether it's at its lowest price. Of course, this information is not supposed to be for you, the consumer. Most people only see what follows a dollar sign, while store employees understand the coding. Now, so will you.

PRICE TAGS (CONTINUED)

Being able to read the secret language of price tags is like being introduced to a whole new world of savings. Some retailers — like Costco — will indicate whether an item is going to be discontinued with something as simple as an asterisk on a price tag. While other retailers — like IKEA — are all about colors (yellow = clearance).

Wouldn't it be nice to know if one of your favorite products is no longer going to be sold? Now you'll know.

Whether the indicator is the last digit of a price or a series of numbers in fine print on a tag, you're about to get valuable insight which will affect your spending most definitely. Should you wait to buy an item because according to the price tag, a new markdown is bound to happen? Or, should you grab what you can now because a product is as cheap as it's going to get?

COSTCO

In photo above, the item was marked $4.97, then marked down again to $2.97.

MACY'S

Yellow price tags ending in 6 are final markdowns.

Blue tags ending in 3 are second-to-last markdowns.

NORDSTROM RACK

If the main white tag says

made to sell at the Rack.

Items with a “Nordstrom”

PP = Product Placement: The sale price is fixed and not a percent discount.

S = Sale: The item will be on sale for 1-2 weeks.

BED BATH & BEYOND

H&M

The season is the seventh number in the first line of numbers under the bar code. You'll see the tag above is for a season two item.

Gift Cards

One of the most underrated things on the planet is a discounted gift card. But let me tell you, you will never underestimate them again after this chapter!

Discounted gift cards allow you to save money on top of any coupons and sales because they're a form of payment. And get this — sometimes you can save up to 25% on all your favorite brands just by using a discounted gift card. No other coupons or sales necessary!

What exactly is a discounted gift card, anyway?

Don't worry — they're totally legit. When someone gets gifted a gift card for a store they have no intention of shopping, they can either stuff it in the back of their junk drawer, never to see the light of day again, or they can sell it for about 92% of its face value.

Gift card resellers like Cardpool.com, Raise.com and GiftCardGranny.com will buy a shopper's unwanted gift card and resell it at a discounted price. So if I'm in the market for new underwear and pajamas, I'll head over to one of these digital gift card resellers and look for the highest available discount on Victoria's Secret gift cards. At the time of this writing, there are three Victoria's Secret gift cards with face values of $250, that are selling for just $213.75 each — that's an instant 14.5% off!

GIFT CARDS (CONTINUED)

Once I purchase my discounted gift card, all I have to do is show the cashier the gift card barcode as payment. You can literally look for secondhand gift cards while standing in the checkout line at your favorite retailer! It's. that. easy.

By using discounted gift cards to purchase the things you want, you're pretty much creating your own sale — anytime you want. Stack a discounted gift card with a coupon to see some massive savings. Now that's how you shop like a boss.

How do I find the best discounted gift cards?

Start with the three sites mentioned above. Like I said, they're legit resellers that have been around for awhile. Always sort by highest discount available for the best offers.

Raise.com even has their own app with some pretty sweet geolocation capabilities. Say you're walking by one of your favorite stores in the mall. If you've purchased a discounted gift card from that retailer, the Raise app will send you a notification.

Or, if you have an existing gift card with a low balance — say, $0.33 — and need more funds to purchase an item, use the free CrayPay app. Enter your total purchase amount and buy a gift card in the exact amount of your purchase. CrayPay turns the gift card into a barcode the cashier can scan at the register. You pay 1.5-3% less than retail price of the gift card, instantly.

You should also consider the The Gift Card Granny Chrome browser extension. It will alert you anytime there's a discounted gift card available for a site you're shopping. How easy is that?!

In the market for products from a certain brand? Customize your settings so you receive notifications from reseller sites anytime a new discounted gift card for that brand becomes available. Do this and you'll always get first dibs on the best inventory.

Shop sister-store discounted gift cards.

You know that Gap, Old Navy, Athleta and Banana Republic are all sister stores, right? So are Nike and Converse. And Williams Sonoma, Pottery Barn and West Elm. Because certain brands fall under the same parent company, you can use their gift cards interchangeably.

GIFT CARDS (CONTINUED)

Like, if I wanted to shop West Elm for a new couch, I might only see an average discount of 5%. But if I searched Williams Sonoma for secondhand gift cards, the average discount is much higher at 9%. Because I know they're sister stores, I'll purchase the Williams Sonoma card and use it to get the perfect mid-century modern couch at West Elm for 9% less than the sale price.

Brush up on your sister-store knowledge and shop discounted gift cards the smart way:
